DETAILED ACTION

1. In view of the Appeal Brief filed on March 8, 2007, PROSECUTION IS HEREBY REOPENED. A new ground of rejection is set forth below.

To avoid abandonment of the application, appellant must exercise one of the following two options:

(1) file a reply under 37 CFR 1.111 (if this Office action is non-final) or a reply under 37 CFR 1.113 (if this Office action is final); or,

(2) initiate a new appeal by filing a notice of appeal under 37 CFR 41.31 followed by an appeal brief under 37 CFR 41.37. The previously paid notice of appeal fee and appeal brief fee can be applied to the new appeal. If, however, the appeal fees set forth in 37 CFR 41.20 have been increased since they were previously paid, then appellant must pay the difference between the increased fees and the amount previously paid.

A Supervisory Patent Examiner (SPE) has approved of reopening prosecution by signing below:

Supervisory Patent Examiner, Art Unit 3611

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1, 2, 4, 6-9, 29, 30, 37-41, 44, 46, 49, 52 and 53 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Raidel II, et al. (6,843,490) in view of Obeshaw (6,893,733).

Raidel, II teaches a suspension system for a vehicle having a frame, the suspension system comprising an axle 106; beam 104 interconnected between the vehicle frame and the axle, the beam having opposite ends, an elongated body extending between the opposite ends and a metal end connection at one of the opposite ends (see col. 3, lines 37-40). The end connection is a frame pivot connection. The suspension system has a cross-section with at least two flanges and a web extending between the flanges. The suspension system connection is a frame pivot connection. The end connection is received internally in the body. The body has a generally I-shaped cross-section. The flanges wrap outwardly about the axle end connection. The end connection is received internally in the body. With respect to the I-shaped cross-section having a greater density of fiber than the web of the cross-section extending between flanges, the I-shaped cross-section is thicker and inherently would have a greater density. As shown in figure 2, a sleeve and a body coupling structure are integrally formed wherein the sleeve encircles a bushing 118.

Raidel II teaches the claimed invention except for the body and the axle being made of a composite material. Obeshaw discloses structural members, having numerous uses (see col. 18, lines 27-30, made of a composite material including a matrix material and a reinforcement material. The reinforcement material is carbon fiber and the matrix material is epoxy resin. Further, Obeshaw teaches a modified contoured crushable structural member such as a steering column made of a composite material, however Obeshaw also teaches composite materials are used in today's vehicles to make structural members; therefore it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at time the invention was made to modify the system of Raidel II to be made of a composite material to decrease the weight of the vehicle to improve fuel efficiency.
